

The RPS Volunteering: Communications Officer

About this role

The role of the Communications Officer is to work with the committee to keep the relevant RPS Group/Region web pages up to date with engaging content. Other media includes; newsletters, articles, publications and social media posts.

Responsibilities include:

- Updating and adding relevant content to the Groups/Region web page hosted on the RPS website (Umbraco Platform)
- Creation of engaging newsletters, articles, publications and looking after the social media platforms (if applicable) in collaboration with the committee and community
- Using ISSUU for online publication and e-zines
- Ensuring content and images used have correct credits and permissions as required

Desired skills:

- To be thorough and have an eye for details
- Excellent writing and communication skills
- The ability to work well with others
- Technically capable and willing to learn and develop your skill

What we offer

The opportunity to be part of an active volunteering community, meet new people that share the same passion. This role will give you encourage you to expand on your skills and experiences, while working with us to promote photography for everyone.

Flexible working is key, so many tasks can be performed according to personal availability. Our Volunteer Support Team will assist and guide you on your journey.

