Call For Papers / Research Symposium, Wolverhampton 28th & 29th March 2025

The RPS Historical Group and University of Wolverhampton Research Day offers the opportunity to present a paper at this year's event.

The history of Photography in all its facets and manifestations arguably spans 199 years and therefore the scope of these events is considerable.

As in previous years, papers from experienced researchers will be welcomed, but we aim to reserve at least half of the time slots for first-time presenters. Our continued aim is to encourage new researchers to share their ideas in a friendly and supportive environment: a sounding board for work in progress.

Members wishing to offer a paper of either 10 or 20 minutes should contact Janine Freeston in the first instance at historicalresearch@rps.org before 15th December 2024.

The event will be a mix of in-person/live and online-by-zoom presentations. We hope that the online speakers will also be available for the Q&A sessions.

Speakers will have the opportunity to submit their paper to our journal The PhotoHistorian.

A copy of our up-to-date guidance for authors is available The PhotoHistorian

Or on request from the editor, who can be contacted at photohistorian@rps.org

We look forward to hearing from you.
