

53N 4W, Gwynedd by Mark Reeves

The intersection is located on the shore of one of the Llynau Diffwys (Diffwys lakes) which lie nestled into the hillside about 4km west of Blaenau Ffestiniog in Snowdonia. Looking south west, with the intersection placed fairly centrally in my image, the lake appears almost as an infinity pool, as the land at the far end falls away to a coastal plain and the sea beyond Porthmadog.

Photographing during the afternoon, directly into the winter sun, I decided to create a simple minimal image that made use of the high contrast between the land, the sky and the water.
