I believe the intersection is slightly to the left of the field gate shown at the lower left edge of the photo. I chose to move the centre of the picture to the right, as I wanted to include the A378 road and the crossroads at mid-right. I could not find easy access to the intersection and decided that a drone shot would be preferable, especially as an expanse of grass, shot at ground level, does not make for a particularly interesting composition. I was standing about 100m from the intersection. The drone's camera was pointing east and the photo was taken at an altitude of about 50m.
