"The aim was also to consider the work of some top-class modern portrait photographers and to understand the principles of using a lot of light to create modelling of the face."